Clackamas Repertory Theatre wants kids to 'Wing It' to new show

Clackamas Repertory Theatre concludes its first year of interactive shows for children with “Wing It: Be Part of Our World,” at 10:30 a.m. June 13 in the Osterman Theatre, on campus at Clackamas Community College.

It’s the season finale and all of the forest friends want to finish with a bang. Rita the fruit fly finally will get her turn in the spotlight to perform her favorite story: “The Little Mermaid.”

And Spit and Spat, the two mischievous stray cats, will return to try their hands (paws) at acting.

“Wing It,” created for children age 2 to 8 years old, is fun for the entire family as they enjoy the 50-minute performance and watch the kids take part in the singing and dancing.

Every show concludes with a talent show, when the children get to go onstage and recite a poem, sing a song, or tell a joke into the microphone.

Admission is a suggested $5 donation at the door. For more information, visit clackamasrep.org or call 503-594-6047.

“Wing It” will return for another season on Oct. 3.
